What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.5)?

Q: Extract files from tar.gz on Mac - Error while trying to cd to target directory I have archived a folder in tar.gz format using the following command: tar -zvf some_dir.tar.gz It created the file, my_dir.tar.gz, in my current directory. Now, if I try to extract the files using the following command: tar -zxvf my_dir.tar.gz It gives the following error: -bash: cd: yyyy/yyyy: Not a directory Can anyone please explain me why this happens? I can extract the files from all the other compressed files (e.g. tar -zxvf some_other_dir.tar.gz) without any error, so I think the problem is with the name of my_dir.tar.gz. A: First of all, as @brettj mentioned in his comment, you're not using the -v and -z options correctly: -v, --verbose Print a progress indicator. -z, --gzip Produce gzipped output. Also, your command is missing a directory: -z, --gzip Produce gzipped output. So, instead you want tar -zxvf my_dir.tar.gz or, what @brettj and I suggested, and what you had already done: tar -zxvf my_dir.tar.gz or cd my_dir tar -zxvf my_dir.tar.gz Now, why does your extraction command give you the error? The documentation explains why: -z (or --gzip)
